Dear Dr. Henney:

I am writing to you to express my concern in regard to the Genetically Modified Organisms (bioengineered food), courtesy of the self-proclaimed life-scientists. I am against the GMO's. I am not sure that anyone has any idea of how this could be done correctly, or who would have to pay for the long-term devastating consequences. Biotechnology presents philosophical dilemmas as well.

Please, let's nature follows its course, in my opinion combining a DNA of a fish for example, with the DNA of a potato is plain madness. We have enough problems in the environment already. This is threatening the diversity and quality of our food and well being of our future generation. Therefore, I ask that all GMO's to be labeled.

I thank you very much for your kind attention to this matter.

Cordially,

Magaly Diaz
